

A madness which here takes the hideous features of the HAARP device (High Frequency Active Auroral Research - Program), an immense field of dipole antennas supposed to merely «study» the ionosphere in the upper layers of the atmosphere. As an octopus extending its tentacles to attack the skies of North America, HAARP is an installation initiated in the 80s as part of Ronald Reagan's famous «Star Wars» operation, and the infrastructure of which is in constant development since then.

Supposedly some harmless research tool carried on the ionosphere in order to monitor communication systems in a defensive purpose of identifying potential nuclear targets, HAARP is in reality a lethal weapon funded by among others, the U.S. Air Force. Under the guise of purely peaceful scientific exploration of the upper layer of Earth's atmosphere, HAARP seeks to develop the best way to «domesticate» them with a bombing of trains of waves.

And this in order to cause local climate change «controlled» for belligerent purposes, to locate oil deposits with the help of produced resonance ; to modify the behavior of crowds by turning them hysterical or depressed (this with the help of ELF - Extremely Low Frequency waves), in order to cause social unrest that could serve interests of the powers in control behind the console ; or to generate earthquakes through referrals from waves primarily bombarded against the ionosphere and sent back over enemy targets.

The bombardment of this region of sky with the waves at very high or very low frequency (depending on the effect one wants to obtain on the ground), has the immediate effect of disrupting the climate. It also has the power to disrupt magnetic fields' waves on a large scale, with the consequences that one can imagine on animals sensitive to these waves (remember here the unexplained phenomena of series of whales and dolphins' strandings, and confused herds of birds or fish in mass «committing suicide» without any logical reason). It might as well, accidentally, trigger a reaction resulting in the burning of the atmosphere in its totality, no more no less. Which is globally equivalent to doing to the sky what the bombs of Hiroshima and Nagasaki were able to locally achieve on ground, making life impossible on Earth because (as seem to have forgotten the sorcerer's apprentices and scientific militaries of all kinds), we do need our sky («Our Lovely Sky») and air to breathe...

«We've set our lovely sky on fire.»

Apparently, that is precisely what some are trying to do in Alaska.

See the book «Angels don't play this HAARP» by Jeanne Manning & Nick Begich, published by Earthpulse Press (1995)